

PEI Working Group for a Livable Income hosts community conversation on climate change, income security in PEI

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE 01/28/2022

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND: On January 27, the PEI Working Group for a Livable Income hosted a community conversation on the links between climate change, income security and community resilience in PEI, with organizational support from Cooper Institute.

Organized in partnership with the Green Resilience Project, the conversation aimed to identify and document a wide range of perspectives on what community members need to build resilience and encourage local action on all the aspects of the climate crisis.

Climate change and income insecurity are two of the most urgent challenges facing PEI residents. The conversation brought community members together to discuss the connections between these issues, brainstorm solutions and identify what they need to put them into action.

Details from the conversation will be shared in the Green Resilience Project's final report, to be published in April 2022.

Cecilia Stuart, the Green Resilience Project
cecilia@greenresilience.ca
(905) 808-9788

The Green Resilience Project is managed and delivered by Energy Mix Productions, Basic Income Canada Network, Coalition Canada Basic Income - Revenu de base, Basic Income Canada Youth Network, national experts and local partners. Funding is generously provided by Environment and Climate Change Canada's Climate Action and Awareness Fund.