

Conservation Council of New Brunswick hosts community conversation on climate change, income security in Fredericton, NB

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE 01/20/2022

FREDERICTON, NB: On January 19, the Conservation Council of New Brunswick hosted a community conversation on the links between climate change, income security and community resilience in Fredericton.

Organized in partnership with the Green Resilience Project, the conversation aimed to identify and document a wide range of perspectives on what community members need to build resilience and encourage local action on all the aspects of the climate crisis.

Climate change and income insecurity are two of the most urgent challenges facing New Brunswick residents. The conversation brought community members together to discuss the connections between these issues, brainstorm solutions and identify what they need put them into action.

Details from the conversation will be shared in the Green Resilience Project's final report, to be published in April 2022.

For all media queries, please contact:

Cecilia Stuart, the Green Resilience Project
cecilia@greenresilience.ca
(905) 808-9788

The Green Resilience Project is managed and delivered by Energy Mix Productions, Basic Income Canada Network, Coalition Canada Basic Income - Revenu de base, Basic Income Canada Youth Network, national experts and local partners. Funding is generously provided by Environment and Climate Change Canada's Climate Action and Awareness Fund.

Conservation Council of New Brunswick is a non-profit organization that creates awareness for environmental problems and advance practical solutions through research, education and intervention.